

ILLINOIS TO CAUCUS NEXT MONDAY EVE

Either West or Buck for National Committee

BY WALTER T. BROWN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
Kansas City, Mo., June 9—(AP)—Although the Illinois delegation to the Republican national convention will not caucus until the night of June 11 to name its members of the convention committees and choose a committee woman, the leaders virtually have agreed on Omer N. Custer of Galesburg, for the committee on credentials.

The leaders of the Frank O. Lowden faction of the delegation, which is in control, have been too busy advancing the candidacy of the former Governor for the presidential nomination, to devote much time to the discussions of the posts.

Allen F. Moore, who was denied a place on the delegation, will retire as committeeman, and the place as committee woman, held by Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, will be vacated as Mrs. McCormick is a candidate for Congressman-at-Large.

Roy O. West, of Chicago, secretary of the national committee, and Clarence F. Buck, of Monmouth, manager of the Lowden campaign, are regarded as candidates for Moore's place. West is an aide of Senator Charles S. Deneen and will have the support of the Deneen delegates. The committeeman's post is expected to swing on the sentiment of Louis L. Emmerson, of Mt. Vernon, and Oscar E. Carlstrom, of Aledo, and their followers in the delegation.

May Support West
Emmerson, a candidate for governor, and Carlstrom, again chosen as the party's nominee for Attorney General, joined with the Deneen faction to defeat the combine of Governor Small, Mayor Thompson of Chicago, and Frank L. Smith, at last April's primary. This may oblige them to support West even though they desire to be neutral.

Committee possibilities are Mrs. Helen Grigsby, of Pittsfield, Mrs. Jacob Bauer, Chicago, and Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, of Downers Grove. Mrs. O'Neill is a member of the state legislature.

What the faction of Mayor Thompson will do at the caucus is problematical. Thompson has espoused the "draft Coolidge" movement. Even the number of delegates who will stick with the mayor and refuse to support Lowden is a question. Of the Chicago delegates, at the primary, but the Lowden camp says only six of them will stand by the "draft Coolidge" war cry.

The Thompson party is expected here June 11. The mayor is to have a headquarters at the hotel Muellerbach. Emmerson who is chairman of the executive committee of the coalition of farm states today re-

CONVENTION SIDELIGHTS

Kansas City, June 9—(AP)—They're coming—was the word spread today as reception committees, reinforced by brass bands, mobilized to meet the first of the special trains bearing delegates to the Republican national convention. While many delegates, committeemen, and observers already are on the ground, arrival of a special train from California this morning marks the opening of an invasion destined to bring thousands here before the opening session Tuesday.

Sixteen trains will arrive Monday bringing delegations from Arkansas, Alabama, Arizona, Washington, Colorado, Kentucky, Maine, Delaware, Maryland, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Minnesota, the Dakotas, Indiana, New Hampshire, New Jersey and other states.

Two presidential candidates were on the list of arrivals today. Senator Guy D. Goff of West Virginia, had a one hour edge over Frank O. Lowden on this morning's slate. Mrs. Lowden and Miss Florence Lowden are included in the party of the former Illinois Governor.

A 16,000 pound national emblem, showing an eagle with a wing spread of about 20 feet, was in place today at the main entrance to convention hall. It is set entirely with nova gem jewels, imported from Austria. Glittering by day in the sun it will reflect the light of huge beacons at night.

Equipment to carry the proceedings music and "atmosphere" of the convention to the ears of the nation next week, is nearly installed in convention hall. A chain of seventy stations of the National Broadcasting Company, the Columbia chain and the Chicago Tribune station comprise the radio network. Graham McNamee, of the National Broadcasting Company, Major Andrew White for Columbia and Quinn Ryan for the Chicago Tribune, are the announcers who are to draw word pictures of the events, the color and the crowds at the hall.

A cable of 800 wires has been installed in Convention Hall to handle part of the news dispatches and telephone calls of 600 odd newspapermen and delegates. It is estimated more than 1,000 miles of new telephone circuits will be in service Monday.

The men selected to place the various candidates in nomination today are absorbing atmosphere to stimulate the flow of oratory expected of them next week. John L. McNab, San Francisco, attorney and neighbor of Herbert Hoover, who will make the nominating speech for the commerce secretary, arrived without a prepared address. "I want to formulate my remarks in the convention atmosphere he explained.

J. N. (Poly) Timmer, former representative from the seventh Kansas congressional district, also has arrived to pace the decorated streets and mix with crowds in the hotel lobbies. He is concentrating on a nomination speech for Senator Curtis of Kansas. Otis F. Glenn, Republican senatorial nominee from Illinois, is preparing to place the name of Mr. Lowden before the convention.

There is to be a blue sky limit at convention hall. A blue ceiling containing upwards of 12,000 electric "stars" has been completed.

BAD WEATHER IS POSTPONING TWO OCEAN FLIGHTS

Mabel Boll Is Determined To Beat Miss Earhart to Europe

New York, June 9—(AP)—A warning against any attempt today at a trans-Atlantic flight was sounded by Dr. James H. Kimball, United States weather forecaster.

"None of the fliers will attempt it if they depend upon us," he said. "Conditions for flying across the great circle route Saturday will not be at all good. It will be stormy all the way over. They would encounter conflicting winds and rains."

Heeding the advice of the weatherman, Miss Mabel Boll, who is seeking to make the trans-Atlantic crossing in Charles A. Levine's Columbia, decided to defer her attempt. She said, however, that she still was "rarin' to go."

She did not indicate how long the flight would be deferred but Levine thought it would be "two or three days."

Miss Boll was still determined to beat Miss Amelia Earhart and William Stultz across, if possible. Miss Earhart and Stultz have also been delayed at Trepassay, N. F., by weather conditions. "I haven't forgotten my agreement to serve as my pilot," she said, "and I intend to beat him if I can."

RESCUE OF ITALIA IS THOT NEAR

Location Believed Determined—Start Rescue Crews

BULLETIN
Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, June 9—(AP)—It is reported at Kings Bay that it has been established that all aboard the dirigible Italia are alive.

Rome, June 9—(AP)—General Umberto Nobile and his crew of seven, missing since May 25 in the dirigible Italia, were believed today to be down at a spot 20 miles north of Cape Leigh Smith, semi-isolated by the pack ice of the Polar seas. Capt. Leigh Smith is the easterly extremity of North East Land and a number of small islands are in the immediate vicinity of the location given for the Italia.

Dog Teams to Rescue
Teams of dogs with sledges and accompanied by guides experienced in Arctic travel will be depended upon to bring the crew of the Italia to safety. The sealing ship Hobby, now somewhere off the northern coast of Spitzbergen with the Norwegian flyer, Lieutenant Luettow Holm aboard, was ordered to work its way toward the Italia through the ice floes and land the dog teams.

The Stefani News Agency announced that the Italia's base ship Citta di Milano was in radio communication with the dirigible for 20 minutes about 7 p. m. Greenwich mean time (2 p. m., Eastern Standard time) yesterday. As soon as the airship's location was learned the Citta di Milano sent out orders to the Hobby to begin rescue work.

The position given in the message is approximately 220 miles from Kings Bay, the base for which the Italia was headed when the radio contact was lost on the morning of May 25. The dirigible was returning from a successful flight to the North Pole where a cross presented by the Pope to General Nobile and the flags of Italy and Milan were dropped on May 24, having left Kings Bay at 4:30 a. m. on May 23.

Have Food Supply
The airship had food supplies aboard sufficient for one month and no fear was felt yet that the crew was on the verge of starvation. The food consisted principally of pemmican and chocolate.

The crew was well equipped to battle with the perils of the Arctic. Skiis, sledges, Canadian snowshoes and sleeping sacks of reindeer skin were aboard the airship.

SCOUTS TAKE OVER CITY TODAY FOR A PRE-CAMP PROGRAM

Hundreds of Fine Young Americans are Dixon Visitors Today

Dixon was host today to hundreds of Boy Scouts of America, members of troops of Black Hawk Area who gathered here for their annual pre-camp rally and outdoor contests, which are being staged at Lowell Park.

The bright smiles of the intelligent and alert faces of the Scouts, most of whom were in uniform, began to make their appearance on the streets of the city early this morning, and as the day progressed the Scouts' uniforms became more profuse, until the early afternoon hours brought in a big influx of the visitors.

Started at 3 p. m.
At 3 o'clock this afternoon the day's activities were scheduled to start with a big parade through the business part of the city, the procession being led by the Dixon Y. M. C. A. Boys Band. The crack uniformed American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps of Rockford, which volunteered its services for the occasion, even providing its own transportation to and from this city, was also to be in the procession, and it was reported among local Scout officials that the Sterling Legion drum and bugle corps, also a fine organization, not to be outdone by their Winnebago county neighbors, had made a similar offer, and their appearance in the parade was also expected.

Several of the Scout Troops in the area have drum corps of their own, all of which were reported ready to take their place in the line, and Dixon Scout officials expected today's rally to be of great display of the strength and success of the Scout movement in this territory.

Local Girl Scouts also formed a part in the parade in honor of the visitors.

COMPLETE PACIFIC FLIGHT

On much the same route as the tragic Dole flight of last summer—only longer—four flyers in the giant tri-motored monoplane Southern Cross, have flown from San Francisco to Brisbane, Australia, by way of Hawaii and the Fiji Islands. Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith, head of the expedition, is shown above (center) with Capt. Harry W. Lyons, Jr. (right) and Charles T. O. Ulm, pilot (left). Kingsford-Smith and Ulm are Australians, while Lyons and the fourth member of the party, James Warner, are Americans.

SANDUSKY PLANT TO BE MODERNIZED; TWO MILLION COST

Supt. Wuerth Plans Big Program of Replacement For Plant

The Sandusky Portland Cement Company is in the midst of a two-year improvement and rebuilding program, calling for the expenditure of more than a million dollars at the Dixon plant east of the city. Superintendent W. E. Wuerth today announced some of the improvements which are now well under way, which will replace machinery and equipment which has been in use almost continuously day and night for the past 20 years.

Since the location of the company's Dixon plant, about two weeks of each year has been utilized in overhauling and making necessary repairs. Aside from this the plant has operated continuously and for the most time has been running day and night.

The program calls for the expenditure of more than a half million dollars this year, the work having started immediately after New Year's. Of recent years cement making machinery has been entirely revolutionized and the major part of the equipment which has been in use, is now considered obsolete. Since the first of the present years two 325-horse power boilers have been removed and replaced with a 900-horse power boiler of the most modern type. New coolers and a new air compressing system have been installed and the reconstruction work is progressing rapidly without an hour's shut down.

A conveyor system, consisting of three units, now carries the powdered stone from the pulverizers to the kilns. This is operated by compressed air and does away completely with the old belt conveyor system. One of these units is 400 feet in length.

Building Huge Silos.
The most notable activity at the Dixon plant at the present time, is the work of construction of six huge silos directly back of the office building. Excavation work is now under way and when completed, this department will consist of a battery of six silos, 50 feet in diameter and 100 feet high with a capacity of 60,000 bushels.

Finds Car He Parked Had Backed Into the W. K. Bounding Main

When Harvey H. Cline, an employee of Snow & Weinman, returned from breakfast shortly after 6 o'clock this morning, after having carefully parked his car in the public parking space at the foot of Hennepin ave., he was astonished to find no car where a car should have been. Investigation showed that it had been carefully and sedately backed over the river bank, gliding easily to repose in about three feet of water. Just why the auto, a Buick touring car, should have acted so unbecomingly, is beyond the explanation of its owner, for he vows when he had set the brakes. No damage was done the car, but a suit of clothes Mr. Cline had placed in the tonneau to take to a cleaner, had additional need for such attention.

DELEGATES POURING IN TO 3 POOLS

Hoover, Anti-Hoover and Doubtful—Hoover Claims 500

Kansas City, June 9—(AP)—Sharp denial of a report that Harry O. Weaver of Wapello, Ia., a Lowden instructed delegate, would second the nomination of Herbert Hoover was made here today by Weaver himself.

The report that Weaver would swing to Hoover came from Mrs. T. P. Hollowell, the Iowa national committeewoman.

Weaver later said the story was "without foundation" and added that "if of the Iowa delegation were pledged to Lowden and that so far as he knew the only Hoover support would come from two Hoover-pledged delegates."

E. R. Hicklin, secretary of the Iowa delegation, also denied the account, declaring there "was absolutely no truth" in it.

In making the statement that Weaver might second Hoover's nomination, Mrs. Hollowell did not indicate that the entire state delegation would go to the secretary. Her view as to Hoover's nomination was that the Hoover headquarters and also at the Lowden offices. The Hoover headquarters also were surprised at this report and professed to know nothing of it.

DELEGATES PILE IN
Kansas City, June 9—(AP)—Widening streams of Republican convention delegates are pouring into Kansas City to come to rest in three distinct pools. One of them is identified as Herbert Hoover's another as anti-Hoover and the third holds the doubtful and waiting.

The delegates making up the latter element hold the middle ground between the commerce secretary's forces and those of the coalition allies—the variegated opposition leaders who are determined to block his nomination. Both sides look to that figurative any-man's-land with rising hopes.

Hoover Claims 500
Hoover men now claim about 500 votes on the first ballot and in the doubtful and waiting group they are certain they will find the needed tallies to give the cabinet member the 545 and nomination.

The allied foes are equally confident that enough votes will be added to those of Lowden, Watson and a few dark horses to effectually block Hoover.

The anti-Hoover movement looked for new inspiration today with the arrival of former governor Lowden to take personal charge of his own campaign along with the movement against his chief opponent. His presence was expected to swing a little in his direction the volume of talk to take heretofore has been dominated by the Hoover men who were first on the field.

HIGHWAY BANDITS WORKED LAST EVE ON LINCOLN WAY

Bold Holdup of Dixon Man Near Nachusa Corners Reported

J. P. Burke of the Dixon Burial Case Company reported to the sheriff's office at midnight that he had been held up near the Nachusa Corners on state route 6, at about 11:30 o'clock Friday evening while returning from Chicago, and relieved of $23 in currency and his firm's sample cases, containing silk casket trimmings, which can be of no value to the thieves.

According to the victim of the hold-up he stopped his car when he was waved down by a flash light in the hands of a man, who apparently had been engaged in fixing an automobile tire at the side of the pavement, and who was being watched in his work by a woman companion.

Thinking them to be tourists in need of assistance, Mr. Burke told The Telegraph today, he promptly brought his car to a stop but had no sooner done so than the man shoved a revolver into his side, and ordered him to "stick up his hands and get out of that car."

Others Hidden in Car.
As the Dixon man complied with the command the two hold-ups were joined by another man and woman, who emerged from the "stalled" car, and they searched him for valuables, taking his money, but not molesting his rings and a stick pin. A dollar watch, which they took from his pocket, was contemptuously thrown back into the car, and Burke was ordered to get in and drive south through Nachusa on the cross road from route 6 to route 2.

After proceeding through Nachusa, Mr. Burke said, he extinguished the lights on his auto and waited for some time to see if he was to be pursued; but when the robbers did not appear he continued on his way to Dixon, and went to the county jail, where he reported the matter to Sheriff Ward Miller.

No Clue to Robbers.
He was able to give but a meagre description of the two men who held him up, saying there was one apparently about 35 or 40 years of age, one wearing overalls and the other a suit of khaki. Their car, he said, was a Buick touring car, carrying an Iowa license, the last three numbers of which were "476." At an early hour this afternoon the officers had been unable to find any clue to the robbers.

Terse Items of News Gathered in Dixon During Day

END ENDURANCE TEST

Ray Barry of Los Angeles, Cal., champion wide-a-wake driver, who has been driving a Whippet sedan between the Dixon Motor Sales agency on Hennepin avenue and Polo, will conclude his long grind this evening at 7:30 at the sales rooms. At that time Deputy Sheriff Fred Richardson will release the handoff which has held his left hand to the steering wheel of the car since last Tuesday evening.

Barry will then have completed a 103 hour endurance test, during which time the engine of the car has never stopped. He has been accompanied by a nurse most of the time, partaking of a special diet and never being released from the steering wheel, driving continuously day and night. This morning, he displayed very noticeably the effects of his long grind, but was emphatic in his statement that he would continue to drive until the designated hour this evening.

WE THANK YOU

The Evening Telegraph is much indebted to X. F. Gehant and to Mrs. Prescott Clark for beautiful peonies brought to this office during the past week.

ALASKAN TOWN ASKS FOR AID—IS BURNING UP

Frantic SOS Signals Start Ships Hurrying to Island

Seattle, June 9—(AP)—A frantic SOS telling of the threatened destruction by fire of an Alaskan village was picked up of the air last night by the naval radio station at Cordova, Alaska, and relayed to the station at Bremerton, Wash.

The message read: "SOS. Whole village on island of Killisnoo afloat. Cannot last very much longer. Please rush all possible assistance." Killisnoo is an island opposite Peril Strait, in Chatham Strait, Alexander Archipelago, near latitude 57-23. The village of Killisnoo is on the island. Its population is native for the most part.

Drives Operator Out.

After the first message was received, there was silence for a time. Then the feeble splutter of the low power set was heard again.

"The fire is getting too hot now," the operator tapped. "Get to go. Am suffocating. Goodbye and hurry." Within a short time the United States lighthouse tender Fern was steaming toward Killisnoo at full speed. She was expected to reach the flaming town within ten hours.

The survey boat Explorer, at sea far to the west, heard the SOS and was expected to arrive at Killisnoo after the Fern.

LICENSED TO WED

A marriage license has been issued by County Clerk Fred Dimick to Johnnie Fisher and Mrs. Mabel Ham-burg, both of Chicago.

Miss Alice Grimes and Miss Catherine Burke of Sterling were business callers in Dixon Friday.

AUSTRALIA WELCOMES 4 AIR HEROES

Enormous Crowds Greet Southern Cross At Brisbane

Brisbane, Australia, June 9—(AP)—Home again, a hero in his own land, Charles Kingsford-Smith, pilot of the trans-oceanic monoplane Southern Cross, today enjoyed the tumultuous welcome of the citizens of Brisbane and all Australia.

For he had brought the huge tri-motored monoplane to a perfect landing here at 10:10 o'clock this morning, completing the last and most dangerous leg of his trans-oceanic flight, from Suva, Fiji Islands, a distance of 1,762 miles. The flight was made in less than 21 hours at an average speed of 86 miles an hour.

Showered with gifts, including $25,000 in gold from the Australian government for the unprecedented record-breaking flight from Oakland, Calif., to Brisbane, Captain Kingsford-Smith gave credit for the success of the 7300 mile aerial voyage to his three associates, Captain C. T. Ulm, co-pilot, a fellow Australian, and two Americans, Harry Lyon, his navigator, and James Warner, radio operator.

Enormous crowds were up at dawn to welcome the fliers to Australia.

Great Crowds Greet Them

Every road leading to the Eagle Farm landing field was blocked hours before the Southern Cross was sighted. Captain Kingsford-Smith brought the plane through a storm which tested the ability of the crew all through the night. Land was first struck at Ballina, 150 miles north of here. This was due to the fierce winter storm which threw the plane slightly off course. Despite the hectic night of flying, the Southern Cross crew experienced no ill effects. The aerial conquerors of the Pacific with open arms. After the first round of cheering and speeches of welcome, members of the crew were escorted to the city from the landing field where joyous crowds lined the pathway of the airmen, cheering them with wild enthusiasm.

Coolidge Congratulates

In Brisbane Captain Kingsford-Smith found a message from President Coolidge awaiting him, expressing "heartiest congratulations to you and your companions on your successful flight from Oakland to Australia." Your brilliant courageous pioneering has advanced the cause of aviation and strengthened the bond

LOWDEN STANDING ORIGINAL VIEWS ON FARM RELIEF

Insists Upon Crop Equalization Fee as Only Sure Aid

Kansas City, June 9—(AP)—Lowden of Illinois held several conferences with leaders of the anti-Hoover drive soon after his arrival here today, and then reiterated his stand for the crop equalization fee principle as the best method suggested to distribute the burden of farm relief among all producers.

The former Illinois governor held that the American Farm Bureau Federation had not repudiated the equalization fee in its tentative agricultural plank to be proposed to both party conventions, which was agreed upon in Chicago yesterday. This plank made no mention of the McNary-Haugen equalization fee, a circumstance which was widely commented upon by the pre-convention crowds here because of the unqualified approval given that provision in the past by the federation.

"Must Have Equalization Fee." This led to close questioning of Lowden at his first press conference in his hotel room, and he maintained that the federation plank had described the equalization fee "in principle."

"I insist," Lowden added, "that if you are going to meet this agricultural problem, you've got to have the equalization fee."

He said it was the best method that he knew for distributing the expense of farm relief among those to be benefited, but that he would "welcome with open arms" any better method.

Lowden declined to discuss any matters expected to be dealt with in the Republican platform except farm relief, declining specifically to be drawn out on prohibition or relations with Central American countries. He likewise ignored queries about any relationship between his campaign and those of other candidates for the nomination, saying he had taken no personal part in the coalition movement against Hoover.

TODAY'S MARKET REPORTS

LEADING STOCKS
REACH LOW LEVEL
FOR WEEK TODAYPrices Yield to Heavy
Liquidation in Short Session

BY STANLEY W. PHENOSIL
Associated Press Financial Editor
New York, June 9—(AP)—Stock prices continued to yield to heavy liquidation for both accounts in today's brief session of the market. Rally was feeble in character. Extreme declines in the active issues ranged from 1 to 6 points with U. S. Steel, General Motors and other recent leaders sagging to the lowest levels of the week.

There was nothing in the day's trade news to influence the price movement. Weekly mercantile reviews reported further irregularities in business. Call money was not a factor as Friday's rate always carries over the week end. Uneasiness over political considerations was more pronounced.

Selling pressure was most effective against the high priced specialties. Radio ran up 3 points to 198 1/2, and ten dipped to 192 1/2. American Bank Cast Iron Pipe, Russia Insurance and Note, International Telephone, U. S. American Republics sold down 4 to nearly 6 points. General Motors, American Telephone, Wright, Curtiss, Reading, Southern Pacific and Delaware & Hudson were among the many issues to decline 2 points or more.

The closing was heavy. Total sales approximated 1,400,000 shares.

Wheat Prices Soar
For Time Today on the Chicago Board

Chicago, June 9—(AP)—Wheat prices were soaring as much as 4 1/2¢ a bushel today, but toward the last reacted on account of persistent selling to realize profits. A radically bullish construction was placed on the government crop report as to spring wheat and as to rye. In addition, export demand today was unusually active, sales of wheat to go abroad being estimated all the way from 2,000,000 to 5,000,000 bu.

Wheat closed unsteady, 1 1/2¢ to 1 3/4¢ higher; corn 1/4¢ to 1/2¢ down, oats unchanged to 1/4¢ down, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 30¢. pit today found offerings light, and a general rush to buy in the wheat the market quickly went skyward. Besides the fact that the government report sowed spring wheat to be at the lowest condition ever known, and that if this continues into harvest the consequences will be serious, especially where farmers are depending on combines.

Despite profit-taking, which developed on the bulge in wheat prices, the market receded hardly at all at times. A strengthening factor was talk that Kansas is getting too much rain, and that if this continues into harvest the consequences will be serious, especially where farmers are depending on combines.

Weekly Grain

Chicago, June 9—(AP)—Winter wheat production of 1928 in the United States is by now practically made, according to statements by leading trade authorities today. Unofficial estimates are to the effect that sufficient moisture has already been received to carry the crop to harvest, and that with favorable weather during the next three weeks, the final returns will approximate 530,000,000 bushels, bettering the latest government forecast by about 18,000,000 bushels.

With this prospect ahead, wheat this morning was 4 1/4¢ to 5 1/4¢ a bushel lower than a week ago. At the same time corn was 1/4¢ to 1/2¢ down, oats 1/4¢ up, and provisions at 10¢ to 42¢ decline.

About the only adverse happenings possible for winter wheat hereafter this season, the best posted traders say, are excessive rains at harvest or hot winds. Optimistically inclined traders are also pointing out that the spring wheat crop as a whole is early compared to other seasons, and as such will be unlikely this year to run into the serious stages of black rust, arachnoides, yh-4, krms.

The other side of the picture is that the total amount of moisture supplied to spring wheat this year since April 1, especially in large producing areas including the Canadian prairie region, appears to be materially below a ten-year average.

Beneficial rains over the greater part of the principal corn producing states have sharply reduced the price of new crop deliveries of corn. Nearby deliveries, however, continue to be affected by prevailing scarcity of old corn. Oats values reflect advice that oats in some sections are beginning to head out extremely poor.

In the provision market, the outstanding feature is that although consumer demand both domestic and foreign, is good, the stocks of lard in sight do not decrease as rapidly as might be desired.

Butter Market

Chicago, June 9—(AP)—Butter markets are unsettled and nervous.

Production is increasing rapidly, receipts are heavier, and the international movement enlarging.

Liberal offerings in Chicago are causing almost daily declines in price. Meanwhile buying interests are conservative and display but little confidence in the situation.

A considerable amount of the top scores now arriving are rather high cost because of contracts with the manufacturers. Receivers, rather than take material losses, are disposed to store this high cost butter, thus curtailing the supply of fancy butter available.

However, in spite of the heavier into-storage movement stocks of butter on hand at the principal markets are still much lighter than those of a year ago.

RAIN ON THE MEADOWS OF YOUTH

To William Bishop Owen
By R. Bowlin
There are men who would flash in the sky of years.
Red, like the meteor's brush aloof;
There are men who would crash in the night of our fears,
Loud, like the bolt of the zig-zag tooth:

But Friend!
My Friend!
Lead me to know thy way to go—
Rain on the meadows of Youth.

Some there are would freeze with fear
Dim souls of lesser proof;
For shame walk men who to win must sear

With heat of gain the green of Truth:

Oh Friend!
Dear Friend,
Bid me recall thy cooling fall—
Rain on the meadows of Youth.

LUNCHEON—Jerusalem artichokes in sauce, graham and nut bread sandwiches, fruit punch.

DINNER—Baked lamb chops, buttered new peas, banana and peanut salad, old-fashioned strawberry shortcake, milk, coffee.

Jerusalem Artichokes in Sauce

Scrape artichokes, throwing each immediately after scraping into cold water to cover to which vinegar has been added. This prevents discoloration. Drain when all prepared and cook in milk and water until tender. Add salt when about half cooked. Drain from liquor and keep hot in a hot serving dish in warm oven. Blend butter and flour and add to milk in which artichokes were cooked. Add pepper and bay leaf and stir over the fire until the sauce boils. Remove from heat and stir in egg moderately beaten. Stir away from the heat until cooked. Add lemon and pour over artichokes. Sprinkle with parsley and serve.

The King's Daughters' Class of Grace Evangelical church held a very pleasant meeting with one of their members, Mrs. C. T. Perry at the beautiful residence of J. F. Enright, 711 E. Fellows street, Mrs. Michael Carroll and Mrs. C. T. Perry being the hostess for the afternoon. The meeting opened with a piano number by Miss Gladys Stroup. The Scripture lesson was read by the president from Corinthians, Chapter 13, followed by prayer by Mrs. Graybill. Another song was followed by the minutes of the previous meeting, roll call and collection. There were seventeen members present and nine visitors. The meeting closed by repeating John 3:16. Afterwards all enjoyed a visit to the photograph gallery conducted by Mrs. Smith. Each member brought pictures of her childhood days and a guessing contest was conducted as to who the pictures were. The hostesses served delicious refreshments and all report a good time.

Rebekah District Assembly Proved Delightful Affair

The Rebekah District Assembly Number Eight was a very helpful and enjoyable occasion. The meeting was called to order at one o'clock in the beautifully decorated lodge room of the Dixon I. O. O. F. Hall. There were visitors from Freeport, Chicago, New Bedford, Leaf River and several other places. In all about five hundred people attended this meeting.

MRS. EMMA ROBBINS

The following officers of District Number Eight were then introduced: Ella B. Kentner—President. Lillian Plulo—President. Marie Doll—Warden. Nora Herick—Secretary. Ella Holly—Treasurer. Nellie Drummond—Junior Past President.

Mary E. Filson of Dixon gave a very pleasing address of welcome to the state officers. Iva M. Crowl responded in a few well chosen words.

There were delegates from each of the eleven lodges of District Number Eight who responded to roll call with encouraging reports of the year's work.

The routine business was taken care of briskly. Rock Falls was selected for the meeting place for next year's district meeting. The following officers to serve District Number Eight next year were then elected: Lillian Plulo—President. Marie Doll—Vice President. Madge Grimes—Warden. Mildred Lee—Secretary. The rainbow girls formed in a tableau under the painted rainbow. Eleven ladies in white brought in a beautiful silk hand embroidered quilt, the gift of Minnie Bell Rebekah Lodge to Emma K. Robbins. The girls in white then dropped gold pieces from each lodge into a silver box at the end of the rainbow. Emma K. Robbins was then conducted to the foot of the rainbow where she received the pot of gold which contained sixty five dollars in gold pieces. She made an appropriate acceptance speech.

Dollie Fauth, Carrie Bridges, Florence Krug and Clara Hintz, accompanied by Edna Pine, sang several beautiful songs to "Our Emma."

Democratic Women in Convention June 12

Springfield, Ill.—(AP)—With the slogan "A democratic Woman's Club in every county," women Democrats from all parts of the state are to meet in convention here June 12.

The work of forming these clubs is progressing rapidly, according to Elizabeth A. Conkey, Chicago, president for Illinois, and will be continued until the "prediction of our slogan is fulfilled."

The study of government of political parties, history of the great leaders in the Democratic party, and current issues especially tariff in its relation to women are topics expected to be discussed at the state convention here.

Mrs. Benjamin Hudson and Mrs. John W. Scott of Springfield, are hostesses. A meeting of the state board will be held in the morning, and at noon, five hundred women will be served luncheon. Those attending the luncheon will represent virtually all the counties in the state.

Candidates on the state Democratic ticket will be guests of the organization and will address the meeting following the luncheon. The Board and Chairmen of the county clubs will be the guests of the president, Mrs. Conkey, at a dinner in the evening, which will be followed by a conference at which further plans for state work will be discussed and determined.

Following adoption of the nineteenth amendment giving women the right of full suffrage, Democratic clubs for women were organized in various states by Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, vice-chairman of the National Democratic committee, Illinois was one of the first states to form a Democratic women's club and it became an active political body working with party committees of both state and county.

In January of this year, when the president called together a group of ten other women, the state club was formed—most of its activities being centered in Chicago, prior to that time.

Homes Built for Adults, Not Children

Chicago, June 7—(AP)—Homes, too often, are "built for adults only," Dr. Jessie A. Charters of the University of Chicago, told representatives of 145 parent-teacher associations of Chicago today.

"We are now urging architects," she said, "to take into consideration the needs of children for play space. Homes are too frequently built with livability of adults only in mind, and then people wonder why children get into difficulty in the process of fitting themselves into these homes."

Dr. Charters addressed the conference of District One of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers. Other speakers at the meeting were Mrs. Herbert W. Whitten of Carthage, newly elected president of the Illinois congress, Mrs. Milton F. Goldberg, teacher in the Chicago schools, and Mrs. Orville T. Bright, honorary vice president of the national congress.

Mrs. Whitten, reporting the progress of the Parent-Teacher annual summer "round-up" for pre-school children, in which children just entering school are examined for possible defects, said that more than ninety associations in the state had enrolled for the work so far this year.

For the first time, she said, the associations of Quincy expect to have every child entering its schools examined and defects so far as possible remedied. Mrs. Whitten emphasized that the home must bear the responsibility for the physical fitness of the beginning school child.

MISS EUSTACE HERE FOR THE SUMMER
Miss Anne Eustace who has been instructor in Latin and other languages at Bethany Episcopal School at Topeka, Kansas, for a number of years, has returned to Dixon for the summer and will soon open her cottage at Assembly Park. Miss Eustace spent a few days in Chicago before coming to Dixon. She will probably go abroad this fall to spend several months.

MRS. WILHELM SANG AT PAW PAW COMMENCEMENT
Mrs. Lester Wilhelm sang two groups of songs at the Paw Paw school at their Commencement Thursday evening. She was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Lloyd Davies. This is the fourth time Mrs. Wilhelm has sung at the Paw Paw graduating exercises.

News of Weddings; Anniversaries, News of the First Lady, and Flower Exhibits

Washington, June 9—(AP)—Cupid was rampant in Washington this week with weddings in unusual number, many of the young bridegrooms being of the graduating class at Annapolis and some of them going to the academy chapel in Annapolis with their diplomas in hand to wed the girls of their choice.

The Ambassador of France, M. Caludel, announced the engagement of his daughter, Mile. Marie Antoinette Claudel to M. Mequillet, vice president of the Mills of Paris, the wedding to take place in the French capital in August. M. Mequillet is the son of a former member of the French House of Representatives and the wedding will be considerable of a social affair.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leiter, who spend most of their time in Chicago, have come to Washington and he and Mrs. Leiter will be given a dinner to-night by Senator Frederick Hale of Maine, in celebration of their twentieth wedding anniversary. Tomorrow Mr. and Mrs. Leiter will do the celebrating, having invited a large number of guests for dinner.

Both the President and Mrs. Coolidge are fully equipped for a summer in the west, the first lady of the land having provided herself with a particularly fetching sport wardrobe with plenty of heavy boots and coats, sweaters and short skirts of a strong material. Walking is the only outdoor sport in which Mrs. Coolidge indulges and of late her long walks have been taken in the early morning.

Scarcely one of the hundreds of tourists who visited the 1928 American horticultural society exhibit in the Hotel Washington, but asked eagerly if the White House was represented, and over and over one heard the wish that they might see a replica of the state dining table when set with flowers for some important dinner. However, there might have been such a disappointment had it not been such simple indeed compared with the Dutch like table decoration shown by Mrs. Edward Beale McLean and which won a second prize. Pansies were the flowers used and there were five baskets, not filled with the blooms but actually made of them, and two Dresden china ladies entirely robed in pansies of purple and yellow.

The round table was entirely set as for a feast, the rare plates belonging to the late Mrs. John E. McLean being used. Worked into the delicately wrought borders were little medallions bearing portraits of her famous French Poodles—A rather unique decoration for luncheon plates. On each plate was laid not a luncheon doily or napkin but a huge dinner napkin of wondrous weaving and texture. Mrs. William H. Dupont of Wilmington, Del., sent from her more than $2,000,000 collection of orchids, many thousands of dollars worth of rare blooms and among them her $10,000 orchid bearing two huge mauve or lilac color blooms. Crowds stood about these precious blooms all day, trying for a sight of so valuable a plant. It has but one duplicate in the world and that one is in England. mond could not have created greater admiration than did her various collections of plants, she and Mrs. Frank Brett Noyes winning several prizes for their collections.

Perhaps the most touching feature of the flower show were the exhibits of the hundreds of disabled soldiers from Walter Reed hospital where are whose greatest joy is to tend the flower gardens. They won a number of prizes and each exhibit of cut blooms was shown in woven baskets or holders, the work of the even more disabled men.

Farewell Party for Clapp Family, Sterling

A farewell picnic supper was given in the parish house of the Grace Episcopal church Tuesday evening.

Al Smith's Younger Daughter Wed Today

Albany, N. Y., June 9—(AP)—Catherine Alice Smith, younger daughter of Governor and Mrs. Alfred E. Smith, today was married to Francis Joseph Quillman, of Troy, a lawyer.

The ceremony was performed in the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception by Cardinal Hayes. There were more than 1,500 guests, many of them figures of prominence in the social, industrial and political circles of the country.

George Quillman was best man for his brother Governor Smith gave the bride away. Miss Julia Manning of New York City, childhood friend of the bride, was maid of honor.

The bride gown was of ivory moire tulle, fashioned with a long tight bodice and a full skirt. The gown had a fichu of rose point lace and there was a band of lace around the bottom of the skirt which was finished with wide scallops. The long lace mitts were also of rose point.

Descending from the back of the Juliet cap of rosepoint was a six yard double tulle veil, forming the train. The bride's slippers were ivory moire tulle, trimmed with rose point lace rosettes.

The bride carried lilies of the valley and white orchid sprays. A display of military pomp greeted the bridal party as it came to the portal of the Cathedral.

The bridal couple passed under an arch of crossed blades held by members of the Governor's staff, colors were dipped in salute to Governor and Mrs. Smith as they came down the steps and buglers gave the executive the four flourishes due him as commander.

At the executive mansion there was a reception for the hundreds of guests. Mr. and Mrs. Quillman will attend the Democratic national convention at Houston. With the exception of the governor and three grandchildren, the Smith family will journey to Houston in the private car of a friend.

Mr. Quillman is a deputy attorney general connected with the New York office of the state attorney general.

2—AVERAGE PROBABILITIES
The cards having been dealt, you should hold thirteen cards in your hand. You will, in all probability, find that you possess every suit. In dealing the cards thousands of times what usually happens furnishes the basis of all guides in bidding. This method produces what is known as "average probabilities," and some of them are as follows:

1—That you may never hold the same hand twice.
2—That every player holds one suit of at least four cards.
3—That the most even distribution of cards is 4-3-3-3.
4—That four out of five hands will not contain a suit of more than five cards.
5—That if you hold a freak or abnormal distribution of cards, the probabilities are one of the other players will also hold an abnormal distribution.
6—That if you hold a singleton in a suit, the remaining twelve cards are divided unevenly among the other players.
7—That if you hold a doubleton, one of the players holds at least five cards in that suit.
8—That if you hold a suit of seven cards, one of the players may be blank of that suit or hold a singleton.
9—That if the cards were evenly dealt, each player would hold one Ace, one King, one Queen and one Jack.
10—That you are justified in assuming (unless denied) that your partner holds three probable tricks for you.
11—That to make less than 30 points is not of great value towards making game, the probabilities being only one out of 30 in your favor.
12—That the team making the first game has the edge on the falling team, the probabilities being three to one that the team making the first game will win the rubber.
13—That the probability of making game with a major suit or no trump is greater than with a minor suit.
14—That the probability of making game with a major suit is greater than at no trump.
15—That holding a two-sided hand, the probabilities are that it will play better in one of the suits than at no trump.
The average probabilities are numerous, and further reference to them will be made hereafter. The foregoing illustrations are given to demonstrate that the bidding and playing of bridge is based on sound principles, and not merely on haphazard, hit-or-miss conjecture.

FORCING THE ISSUE.

People of the Mississippi valley may as well recognize that they have the railroad to fight in establishing water transportation. We had been hopeful that the issue no longer would be drawn along that line. There had been some indications that railroads would co-operate voluntarily with barge lines. Since it has appeared that barge lines are to be extended to the upper Mississippi and to its main tributaries, a definite line of opposition is being established.

Railroads objected to joint rates, they objected to the appropriation for the extension of the barge line, and now they are attempting to discredit the whole undertaking.

We think it is a bit of the shortsightedness for which railroad officials are noted, which has brought them no end of trouble in the past. There are many of us who were out of sympathy with the wholesale attacks on railroads, which culminated in anti-railroad agitation and legislation in all state legislatures. Much of it was destructive rather than constructive. It seems strange now to see the railroads using the same destructive methods in attacking waterway transportation. They are grabbing at every straw that may be utilized against the use of waterways in the midwest. If water transportation is an economic failure, the best thing the railroads can do is to let it fail. Then they may gather in all the advantages that accrue to such failure. Otherwise they may harvest another crop of anti-railroad sentiment, of which they already have harvested too much.

The last bulletin of the committee on public relations of the eastern railroads reprints from a magazine article by Prof. R. W. Harbeson of St. Lawrence university, in New York, in which the professor already is ready to pronounce barge service "an economic failure." He bases his conclusions on the experiment on the lower Mississippi and Warrior rivers. In the course of his article he says:

"The 20 percent reduction under the rates quoted by competing rail lines, which is given to barge line shippers, can scarcely be supposed to offset the additional costs mentioned above, which the rates do not cover, although no one can answer this question definitely until proper accounting methods are instituted.

"The public deserves to have such a test made in order that it may find out whether the barge line shippers are paying the full cost of transporting their shipments or whether they are being subsidized, and to what extent, by the federal government, at the expense of the people as a whole."

As we have said before, in consideration of the gifts and grants received by railroads when they were being constructed, they are oversensitive about the aid that is being given to barge lines during the period of experimentation.

The midwest has in mind that the Panama canal was built "at the expense of the people as a whole," and it has paid its share. Not only has it paid its share, but the canal has been operated at a distinct advantage to the eastern and western coasts and to the disadvantage of the Mississippi valley. It is the purpose of the midwest to obtain means of utilizing this canal by water routes and thus to benefit from a waterway that was constructed "at the expense of the people as a whole."

Joined with the railroads in opposition to barge extension were the large sugar refining interests of the east, who feared that cheaper transportation would injure their business in the midwest.

In whatever direction the corn belt turns for economic equality, it finds "interests" that are fearful of losing something they have gained at the expense of the west.

Statistics on operation of barges are not worth much until such terminals as Chicago and Kansas City are tied in with the system, and that is what is proposed by the barge extension just authorized.

Kansas City has been allotted 825 tickets to the Republican national convention. The man who distributes them successfully among 400,000 persons should get the nomination.

THE KNYMITES

STORY BY MAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

"Hey, move that stone," somebody said. "And then our boat will move ahead." Then Coppy tried to move it, but it didn't budge at all. The others watched him as he tried, and Carpy jumped down by his side, and shouted, "Come on, everyone! I guess 'twill take us all!"

So all the Tines, unafraid, jumped in the stream, to Coppy's aid. This time the stone gave way and toppled over with quite a splash. This made a pathway for their craft, and as it moved the whole bunch laughed. Then Scouty shouted, "Hop aboard! We'll have to make a dash."

And he was right. The boat moved quick. 'Twas well the Tines were slick at scrambling through the water, or they'd all been left behind. They climbed aboard and shortly found that everyone was safe and sound. Said Clowny "We are soaking wet, but there's no use to mind."

"Let's all sit out here in the sun. 'Twill dry us, and be lots of fun. Our boat is in the open now. We're safe as we can be. 'Oh, no we're not,' another cried. 'The craft still tips from side to side. I do not like this rapids. It is much too rough for me.'"

Just then they heard a funny sound, and all began to look around. "Hey! What is that?" cried Scouty, as he pointed in the air. "A flying man! My, he is queer, and look, he's coming right down here." The man flew close, and said, "I've come to save you from a scare."

"Your boat is going to take a drop. There's no way you can make it stop. So I have come to carry you to safety, near at hand." It sure gave Clowny quite a scare, as he was carried through the air. "Don't worry," said the man. "I'll find a place for you to stand."

(The Tines watch their boat go over a falls in the next story.)

MARYE and MOM
Their Letters

BY RUTH DEWEY GROVES

Dear Marye:
What will you do next, Marye?

I'm ever so sorry about your accident which both you and Alan have assured me is slight, but I do hope that you have not suffered in another way—for I am sure you have hurt Alan keenly by persisting in going about with this "Pede" of whom he disapproves so keenly.

In the same mail bringing your letter, I received one from Alan. Fortunately yours was the first one I opened, and after your rather light account, I could not believe you had been seriously injured.

Alan's reassured me. It was really a very thoughtful gesture on his part. He said your injuries were mere scratches, and that he would take good care of you. It was considerate of him. I thought, not to mention the fact that you had been injured in another man's car.

Just think how humiliating this would be, Marye. If you had really been hurt—or even killed. Think what a scandal might have developed from just this innocent little ride.

You know nothing about Pede except that he is a foreigner with nice manners who flirted with you and has pursued you since—all I might say, with your encouragement and approval.

But you can rest assured, Marye, that if either of you had been seriously hurt, his identity would have been revealed. And had he turned out to be an impostor—as many foreigners are—that would have reflected no credit on you or Alan.

I think, as I have told you before, that you take long chances, and that you should consider the consequences.

not only of your acts, but of your chance acquaintances. Certainly I disapprove most highly of your being in the company of men that are not friends of Alan.

I am sending you a home-made cake and some cookies, and some of the raspberry and pineapple jam I made last year that you like so much. I hope they reach you in splendid shape, and that they remind you of the home that has been lonesome for you ever since you left.

All my love,
MOM.

Cotton Blossom Singers Tuesday evening, June 12 at 8:00 at the Camp grounds auditorium a group of colored girls, students from the Piney Woods School of Piney Woods, Mississippi, will give a concert. Their songs are the old spirituals of their roll and plantation melodies. Among the songs they will sing are: "Steal Away," "Lord I Couldn't Hear Nobody Pray," "Can't You Live Humble," Folk Songs— "Cotton Picking Song," "Cotton Packing Song," "Honeytown," Heavenly Group—"Swing Low Sweet Chariot," "Looking Away in the Heavens," Anxiety Group—"It's Me, It's Me Oh Lord," "Lord I Want to be a Christian," "You Better Mind." Two years ago a group of singers from the same school gave a concert on the camp grounds which more than pleased the people and we know that this group will not fail. The admission fee is nothing, but a silver offering will be taken for the Piney Woods School. A word about the school will be of interest. The school is undenominational, but Christian, having no church board back of it. The school was organized in 1910 by Laurence Jones of Marshalltown, Iowa, and has prospered because of the kindhearted friends everywhere who gave him from one dollar to hundreds of dollars. The following letter will be of interest also to the readers of this column: "Sinnissippi Farm, Oregon, Ill., March 30, 1926. To Whom It May Concern: For a number of years I have watched with keen interest the progress of Piney Woods School as Laurence Jones has worked it out. I have helped the school for the same reason that I am sending this letter—because I believe in what Laurence Jones is doing and because I think he is accomplishing it in an intelligent, efficient way. Very sin-

Flowers Stolen Complaint has come to us of the stealing of flowers from one grave that is known in the local cemetery. With the abundance of flowers everywhere, and the many kind hearted folks who own them it is really a crime when one stoops so low as to steal flowers from a grave or from anywhere else for that matter. We know of places where vases and flowers are stolen from the cemetery, but as yet there has been no complaint until this year of our own cemetery, and it is to be hoped that it will not continue.

INDUSTRIAL POISONING

There are several types of poisoning which result from using poisonous chemicals in manufacturing processes. The most common occupational disorder that a doctor is called upon to treat is chronic lead poisoning. It occurs in almost every type of industry which necessitates handling this metal or its compounds, such as white lead paints.

The lead enters the body very gradually, and it seems to enter through the skin and through the inhalation of dust or vapor. Most cases of metal poisoning must be prevented by keeping the dust and fumes from entering the mouths and noses of the workers.

The symptoms of this form of poisoning are abdominal pains, constipation, and a peculiar leaden hue of the gums, the palate, and even the skin. When this poisoning becomes chronic, it produces severe kidney disorders, paralysis, and sometimes blindness. Death from lead poisoning resembles the symptoms of blood poisoning.

Another type of industrial poisoning which is very frequently met with but not often recognized is mercury poisoning, caused by an excessive contact with mercury. When "frying gold" was practiced, these cases were fairly common. The mercury was used to absorb the gold by amalgamation from the small rock and gravel with which the gold is mixed, and the mercury was evaporated from a frying pan, leaving the gold as a residue.

There are other occupations that use mercury, and usually precautions are taken to avoid this poisoning. This disorder is very insidious, as its worst effects do not occur until many years have passed. It produces symptoms very similar to those of advanced syphilis, such as paratyphoid and softening of the brain.

Phosphorus poisoning at one time but modern methods of preparing the was quite common in match factories, phosphorus have almost eliminated this disease.

Gasoline and kerosene poisoning usually occur by accident, more frequently in children, but even the inhalation of gasoline vapor will produce poisoning. In swallowing as little as an ounce of gasoline or benzine, unconsciousness will generally result in from ten to fifteen minutes, and death may occur shortly after. Some individuals have more resistance and can swallow a larger amount without producing death. It produces a burning pain in the throat and stomach. Vomiting, thirst, dizziness, drowsiness, headache, shortness of breath, drowsiness and finally unconsciousness.

If a person has swallowed any of these poisonous substances, vomiting should be induced as soon as possible. Some form of fasting is advisable in the case of the metallic poisons, and phosphorus. I have found that a citrus fruit fast, followed by a milk diet until the worst symptoms have subsided, is the most valuable method of curing these diseases dietetically.

Of course, any person who receives an occupational poisoning should change his occupation so that he will no longer absorb these poisons.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
QUESTION: R. H. J. writes: "What can be the cause of violent dizziness when lying on back or right side? Bowels are regular."

ANSWER: The dizziness may come from high blood pressure or hardening of the arteries. In some cases, plain biliousness is responsible.

QUESTION: Schoolgirl asks: "Are pickles harmful to one's health?"

ANSWER: You will notice I do not recommend pickles in my menus. They must be classed as condiments and not as food. If used at all they should be used with a meal containing no starch.

QUESTION: K. P. writes: "I have a case of kidney trouble. Have been on a diet of just milk and one orange a day. Everything has cleared up in the urine but the albumin, which is 3 plus. I have no more casts or acids, but still the albumin doesn't go down."

ANSWER: You do not say how long you have been on the milk diet, but as this is an excellent treatment for albuminuria, I would advise you to continue on such a diet until you show still more improvement. If the albumin does not disappear rapidly enough it would be a good plan for you to take an orange juice fast for a few days, then go back on the milk.

QUESTION: J. O. writes: "I have a fallen stomach that hangs several inches below normal. How can I bring it back in place?"

ANSWER: You can bring your stomach back to normal position by taking certain kinds of exercises. Write me again sending a large self-addressed stamped envelope, and I will send complete directions for these exercises, with illustrated chart.

QUESTION: Mrs. F. Z. writes: "I have been bothered with neuritis for two years. Have been to several doctors but have not had much relief. Am very nervous and anemic. What can I do to regain my health?"

ANSWER: There are two principal causes of neuritis: one is a toxic condition of the blood similar to rheumatism, and the other cause is from pinched nerves somewhere between the painful part and the spinal cord. An osteopath of chiropractor can usually remove this latter cause and the toxic condition is cured by dieting, exercising and living according to good hygienic rules.

QUESTION: John asks: "What is your opinion of unbolted cornmeal?"

ANSWER: The unbolted, unrefined cornmeal is a healthful food and is placed in the starchy class the same as all grain foods. When corn bread is used it should be taken in combination with the non-starchy vegetables and not with meat, fish or fowl.

QUESTION: Mrs. D. W. H. writes: "I have an upper set of false teeth. The plate cracked a few months ago and caused a slight cut on my tongue. It smarted quite a bit yet, especially at night. Do you think there is any danger of cancer?"

ANSWER: Any irritated spot in the body may be the seat of the growth of a cancer and therefore all such irritation should be avoided. If your saliva is normally alkaline, it furnishes an excellent antiseptic for your mouth, but at this time it might be well for you to treat the spot on your tongue with silver nitrate, mercurchrome, or some good astringent.

John Dienthart, Bugs Baer, Fraser Edwards, John A. Kennedy, Edward L. Roddan, Senator Gerald P. Nye, Senator Simeon D. Fess, John T. Lambert, Lucy Price and Corinne Rich will round out the greatest galaxy of writers who ever covered a national convention for any newspaper.

..at the Republican Convention for the Herald and Examiner*Ruth Hanna McCormickOne of Illinois' Most Illustrious Women*

Who will be nominated at Kansas City? Will it be Hoover... Lowden... Dawes... a dark horse... or who? All ears are listening to the buzzing of the Presidential bee. The eyes of the entire country are turned westward, awaiting the outcome of the Republican National Convention. The mooted question is "Who will be the Republican nominee?" To bring to its readers the fullest measure of convention news the Chicago Herald and Examiner, in addition to the reports of famous political writers, has been most fortunate in securing the services of Ruth Hanna McCormick, distinguished Illinois stateswoman, who will write a story of pre-convention activities as well as a daily story during the convention.

As a delegate she will be in the thick of events, giving her an inside track on important happenings which she will recount as only one of her political experience can do. Her first story appears Sunday. Don't miss it!

HERALD CHICAGO AND EXAMINEROrder Your Copy Now!A STATEMENT RELATING TO THE FUTURE OF THE CHRYSLER CORPORATION and DODGE BROTHERS, INC.

The widespread public interest in recent events affecting the Chrysler Corporation and Dodge Brothers, Inc., deserves an authentic and official statement and an assurance regarding the future of these two corporations.

Subject to the approval of stockholders, Dodge Brothers, Inc., will be acquired by the Chrysler Corporation, the plan of amalgamation having been recommended by their respective boards of directors.

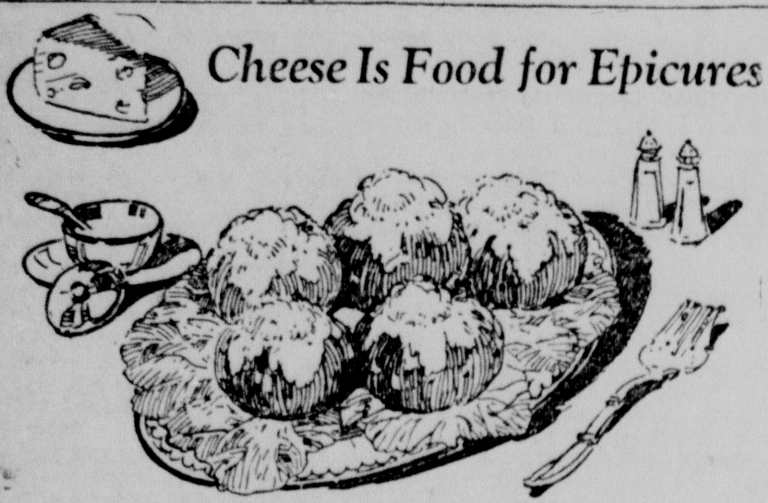

Each of these great institutions will retain its identity, and will continue, as heretofore, to produce and market its own product in accordance with the high and progressive standards from which motor car buyers the world over have previously benefited.

Each will benefit from the consummation of a plan which unites such tremendous resources in material, manufacturing facilities, financial power and manufacturing genius.

Dodge Brothers will continue to be Dodge Brothers, and Chrysler will be Chrysler. Their products will be separate and distinct and will be continued in production without interruption. Their sales organizations will be unrelated except as they shall mutually share in the advantages of the consolidation.

Both public and dealers may look forward to the greater benefits which the consolidation of such tremendous resources will produce—and the men identified with these businesses may be assured of a stable and definite future, inspired by the progressiveness which has been responsible for this uniting of two great companies.

Cheese Is Food for Epicures

By CAROLINE B. KING
Culinary Expert and Lecturer on Domestic Science

DESPITE its high nutritional value and piquant flavor, cheese has been a much neglected food on the American menu, although consumption is now steadily increasing. The European influence is growing, and precise housekeepers always keep it on hand and see that it is invariably placed on the table along with the sweet or fruit. It does add a final touch of sophistication to a meal.

With the help of the medical profession and the scientific dietitians cheese is gradually becoming recognized as an important element in the daily diet and as a substitute for meat, eggs and other high-protein foods. The wide variety of its uses, however, is still pretty much of a culinary secret. Every one, of course, knows how delicious a Switzerland cheese sandwich can be on occasion and how this particular kind of cheese lends color as well as savoriness to a cold platter of ham and crisp green pickles. The same versatile product of Switzerland is just as delightful made into a salad or dessert or served as a piquant appetizer or as a helpful accessory for serving at a company luncheon or party.

Alpine Canapés: Cut thin slices of bread into rounds with a small cookie cutter and sauté a delicate brown in melted fat. Cover each canapé with Switzerland cheese cut very thin, spread lightly with mustard, sprinkle with very finely chopped hopped ham and in the center of each place a halved stuffed olive, cut side uppermost. For added daintiness arrange a border of finely chopped hard cooked egg white all around each canapé. Serve these as the first course for a luncheon or supper.

Swiss Tomatoes: Select small regular sized tomatoes, scald, chill and peel them. Then hollow deeply. Chop together enough boiled tongue and enough Switzerland cheese to make four tablespoonsful each, one thin slice of onion, a spray of parsley and two pickles. Mix with mayonnaise. Fill the tomatoes and serve with mayonnaise on lettuce bordered plates.

Gruyère's Scullions: Try these for supper or luncheon. Wash tender green onions and boil in just enough salted water to cover, then drain well and season with salt and paprika. Toast a slice of bread for each person to be served and arrange on warm plates. On the bread lay thin slices of Switzerland cheese, then place the onion on the cheese. Pour a little hot melted butter on each and serve at once.

Switzerland Waffles: Prepare a gingerbread batter and bake in the waffle iron. On removing the waffles place thin slices of Switzerland cheese on each and fold together. Serve with feed tea, milk or butter-milk for luncheon or afternoon tea.

Cheese and Cherry Rings: Cut white bread into slices one-quarter inch thick, then shape with a doughnut cutter into rings. Dip in a batter made by beating together one egg, one cupful of milk and a half teaspoonful of salt. Then fry in deep fat. Spread each ring with preserved cherries and top with cubes of Switzerland cheese. Serve hot.

Pays $4000 for 10 Stamps

It's worth several thousand dollars to lick these stamps, says John A. Klemann, at side, New York stamp specialist, who owns them. The reason is, he paid $4000 for the ten. And that's because they are one block, unique in itself, of the vintage of 1845 when the New York postoffice printed its own stamps and the postmaster put his initials on each to "cancel" them. Klemann bought the stamps at the $3,000,000 exhibit by the country's leading philatelists in Cleveland.

BUTLER, FRIEND OF PRESIDENT, PROVED VALUE

Chairman of Republican Committee Keeps Scandals Away

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

Washington—Serious, solid and silent, William M. Butler of Massachusetts was four years ago placed in charge of the Republican party by his friend Calvin Coolidge. Now he is about to quit the chairmanship of the national committee still serious, solid and silent.

In the four years of his reign, Butler has justified the Coolidge faith by giving the party everything it demands of a national chairman:

1. He has avoided scandals.
2. He leaves no deficit behind him.
3. He has been indisputably boss of the committee.

That record is a key to Butler's personality. More than anything else, Butler is safe, sane and conservative. Smart presidents pick national chairmen who will run the party organization as they want it run. And Butler has done the job as Coolidge would have done it himself.

Butler's biography shows that he was first a corporation employee, then a corporation lawyer, then a corporation organizer and finally a corporation owner. Naturally, he operated the Republican party as if it were just one more corporation.

Not a Popular Man
Butler has been far from the most popular national chairman the party has had. He's no back-slapper like his predecessor, Will Hays, and his refusal to be a dummy for Harry Sinclair's oil gifts indicates that he is more scrupulous. It has been said that, compared with Butler, Coolidge is garrulous. Although he is supposed to be one of the president's two closest friends, they call each other "Mr. Butler" and "Mr. Coolidge."

Aside from politics, Butler's main interests are the textile and utility corporations which he heads—along with the innumerable ones of which he is a director—and his private yacht. Born and raised in the famous old whaling city of New Bedford, he has always been a good sailorman. Once he told Coolidge the yacht Mayflower appealed to him as a hotel parlor would for a home.

Butler is a short, almost pudgy man, 67 years old, with iron gray hair and close-cropped mustache. He wears clothes indicative of the industrial captain. He sits with hands clasped on his bay window, appearing placid and probably content, though far from merry. He can make a business-like five-minute speech, but is a stranger to oratory. He believes of course, that the nation's welfare and prosperity depend on the Republican party.

Butler always believed a straight answer was the best policy. When Coolidge made him his pre-convention manager in 1924, party politicians began to find this out.

Bossed 1924 Meet.
When the 1924 convention assembled, Butler, acting for Coolidge, was boss. He ran things to suit himself and some of the Old Guard senators thought he was cold-blooded about it. After the vice presidency had been tossed about and several times refused, they took the reins and began to work for Dawes. Butler stepped down from the platform and said to a Dawes senator: "It's to be Hoover!"

"No it isn't," the senator yelled back, "it's to be Dawes on the next ballot."

And so it was, but Butler promptly regained the reins and submerged the undercurrent of criticism from the Old Guard. He won his "Keep Cool With Coolidge" campaign without the hoar of Hays and without spending money like water, as Hays had in 1920. According to best estimates, he spent about half as much. Of his $3,000,000 campaign fund a third was given to the state organizations.

"With his own money, he's liberal," says one who knows him well, "but with campaign money he's unquestionably the most hard-boiled chairman they ever had."

When Butler was appointed to the Senate to succeed Henry Cabot Lodge, he was looked on as a successor to Hanna, Quay, Penrose and Crane. He was boss of his party organization and represented the president in Congress. But his path along the royal road to power was blocked by David I. Walsh, Democrat, who defeated him in the next Massachusetts senatorial election. He may run again this year.

Picked Kansas City.
Butler's last outstanding demonstration of leadership and control came early this year when he forced the convention to go to Kansas City. He considered it good strategy to meet in the heart of the agricultural belt, but he also held the convention should be attended by delegates rather than proxies. He knew a San Francisco convention meant nearly three weeks' loss of time to delegates and much more expense to most.

Butler, the son of a New Bedford clergyman, started life as a shoe factory clerk. After studying at Boston University Law School on self-earned money, he entered practice in New Bedford and was elected to the Massachusetts legislature in 1890. In Boston he finally became a protégé of Murray Crane. Crane put him in touch with valuable business connections and Butler became a corporation lawyer. He acquired interests in various concerns, notably textile mills. Crane, noted for his own silence and his liking for silent men, put Butler and Coolidge together. Butler continued his political interest—especially in Coolidge.

It's interesting to observe that when Coolidge entered the White House he kept his three best friends and advisers—Stearns the merchant, Morrow the banker and Butler the corporation lawyer and manufacturer.

OUR TREES

THE TULIP TREE

Tall and stately and conspicuous in the spring for its handsome tulip shaped orange and yellow flowers, the tulip tree is one of the beauties of the eastern forests.

Because its leaves flutter like those of the poplars, it is sometimes called yellow poplar. The Indians so habitually made their dugout canoes of its trunks that the early settlers of the west called it canoe wood.

The tulip tree grows to magnificent size in the forest, often attaining a height of 100 feet. The flowers are large and brilliant. In color they greenish yellow with dashes of red and orange and their resemblance to a tulip is very marked.

Because of its size and comparative freedom from defects planks 60 inches or even more in width may be manufactured from the tulip tree.

The wood works well, does not split easily when nailed, and holds paint exceptionally well. It is used largely for planing mill products, including sash, doors finish and siding and for furniture, boxes and veneer. It is particularly suitable for products that are to be painted or enameled.

The large, clear round logs are well adapted to the manufacture of rotary veneer which is used extensively in built up panels for finish, furniture, piano cases and various forms of cabinet wood.

The stand of tulip trees has been roughly estimated at nine and three-fourths billion board feet of which probably 75 per cent is in the states of West Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky and Virginia. More than one-half of the present stand is virgin timber.

Strike of Pullman Employees Deferred

New York, June 9.—(AP)—A threatened strike of 11,000 Pullman car porters and maids, called for noon Friday has been indefinitely postponed.

A. Philip Randolph, organizer of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters in making the announcement said that the strike was deferred on the advice of William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, who held the economic conditions were unfavorable to such a strike.
